

LIRNEasia @ five:
research --> policy --> knowledge-based economies

Speaker bio: Evan Due, PhD

Due, Evan, PhD, is Senior Program Specialist responsible for economic and trade programs at the International Development Research Centre (IDRC) Regional Office for Southeast and East Asia in Singapore. Prior to joining IDRC in 2003, he served with the Government of Canada in various positions with the Canadian International Development Agency, including diplomatic assignments in Pakistan, Afghanistan and India, senior economist in the Policy Branch, and analyst in the Asia Branch. During this period, he also served as the lead member of Canada's delegation to the OECD Development Assistance Committee Working Party on Financial Aspects, and the DAC Network on Poverty Reduction. From 1987 – 1990, he worked as technical advisor in the Ministry of Policy and Planning, Government of Sri Lanka.

Due's interests include public policy, political economy and institutional economics, and poverty analysis. He recently co-authored the book Fighting Poverty with Facts: Community Based Monitoring Systems with Celia Reyes in 2009. He received his doctorate from the University of Sussex.